Xi Jinping attends a primary-level Party organization meeting ahead of the 19th CPC National Congress

Editor’s Note:

On August 13, Xi Jinping, General Secretary of the Communist Party of China (CPC) Central Committee, attended a primary-level Party organization meeting of his Party branch and gave an important speech to the members. In response to a notice calling all members to prepare for the 19th CPC National Congress, the General Office of the CPC Central Committee issued a notice. Xi, under the leadership of the Party in the army, emphasized Party members’ participation in activities of the Party branch.

On the morning of August 13, Xi Jinping, General Secretary of the CPC Central Committee, State Leader, and Leader of the armed forces, Xi’s participation in the primary-level Party organization meetings as an ordinary CPC Party member serves as a model for all CPC Party members nationwide.

Xi’s speech received an enthusiastic response. The members present were greatly motivated and benefited a lot from the speech. Being a leader of the whole nation is to make sure that the 19th CPC National Congress is held well and that the entire Party and the country’s work will make the whole nation trust the Party and devote themselves to the cause of realizing the Two Centenary Goals. Xi hoped every Party member would concentrate on their work and take action to complete their work effectively.

Xi also pointed out that Party members should act in an appropriate manner at all times. He said the CPC is standing on a noble course. It needs neither false airs nor empty promises but concrete work, not only for the members who do not wish to make sacrifices. Xi encouraged all members to learn from previous role models such as Zhang Side, Norman Bethune, Lin Biao, and Jiang Zemin, and to have a strong sense of historical responsibility.

Xi also stressed the leadership of the Party and the whole Party member has the responsibility to manage the Party. Xi said the Party branch had implemented the “Three Meetings and One Class” system conscientiously. Everyone present was an ordinary CPC Party member and should participate equally in the primary-level Party activities of a Party branch.

Xi also said that presently, an important mission for the Party and the whole nation is to make sure that the 19th CPC National Congress is held well and that the entire Party and the country’s work will make the whole nation trust the Party and devote themselves to the cause of realizing the Two Centenary Goals.

At the end of his talk, Xi said he hoped all members would put their trust in the Party and devote themselves to the cause of realizing the Two Centenary Goals. Xi also expressed his thankfulness to the Party branch and its members.

The meeting ended with a vote of confidence. The members present gave a standing ovation to express their satisfaction and support for Xi’s speech.
China's green solution
China's Fujian Province is leading the way in successful ecological development

China has a modern urban and rural landscape, with magnificent scenery, rich biodiversity and considerable natural resources. It is a country with a long history and culture, as well as great potential. While developing economically, China has taken practical measures to promote green development and international cooperation. China has achieved considerable results and gained valuable experience in green development and environmental protection.

Model of green development

“The practices of the CPC Fujian Provincial Committee in pursuing green development is a model for China and the world,” said William·N·Brown, former President of the International Federation of Park Authorities. He noted that the CPC has taken practical measures to promote green development and international cooperation. China has achieved considerable results and gained valuable experience in green development and environmental protection.

In its second decade, BRICS is ready for a higher state in global governance.

The special agenda of the Xiamen Summit shared China’s aspiration to explore the development of the BRICS and gather all five countries’ resources to share the fruits of BRICS development. To this end, the Chinese side proposed, “BRICS Plus,” which would create new space for cooperation and development by improving global governance and jointly addressing global challenges.

A sovereign way with the enhancement of the cooperation mechanism, BRICS is expected to have a bigger voice in global governance. The Chinese side made a significant change in the world arena.

BRICS, bigger role

BRICS (Brazil, Russia, India, China and South Africa), which is often dubbed a rich countries’ club, BRICS is not based on ideology or geopolitics. It is an “equal footing.”

That is why the Xiamen Summit emphasized the role of people-to-people exchanges for the five to tap, such as Russia’s literature, India’s film industry and Brazil’s football. “Deeper and wider exchanges will bring new impetus to the cooperation mechanism,” he said.

According to him, in the current period of potential conflicts and changes, BRICS is expected to play a larger role in the world arena.

In recent times, such exchanges have been making pragmatic progress. For example, earlier this year, the first BRICS Games was held in China. The five BRICS countries invited for dialogue on the sidelines of the main meeting.

The BRICS Plus mode was proposed by China following the Xiamen Summit’s BRICS. China will invite more countries to join the group as BRICS members invited for dialogue on the sidelines of the main meeting.

The leaders’ Xiamen Summit drew on the Chinese people’s wisdom to foster new momentum for China’s development.

Yu Liufen, Secretary of Yanbo Village

Situated at an altitude of 1,800 meters in the Committee of the Communist Party of China, in Liupanshui, Guizhou Province, has led the village out of poverty. Yu has been elected as a delegate to the 19th CPC National Congress.

“By the end of 2017, all villagers in my village had moved out of poverty,” Yu said in an interview with the Information Office, International Department of the CPC Central Committee’s Beijing Review. “Not long after, I was selected as a delegate to the Party’s National Congress. Now I am living in the city. I was elected the secretary of the village committee.”

The village is located at a minimum altitude of 1,800 meters in the mountains of Guizhou Province, a mountainous region suffering from harsh weather conditions. Yu worked hard in the past two years to help the villagers move out of poverty, which Yu said will bring them a brighter future.

Almost three decades ago, Yu came to the village with her husband Yang Yuhua in 1990. Yu later took over her husband’s job as the Party secretary of Yanbo Village in Yubei Township, Liupanshui County of Guizhou, the village with a total area of 17 square kilometers and a population of 4,500. The village is located in a mountainous region, where the average altitude is 1,800 meters. The average annual temperature is 10 degrees Celsius, with annual rainfall of 900 to 1,500 millimeters and about 1,800 hours of sunshine each year. Yu said the village is located at a minimum altitude of 1,800 meters in the mountains of Guizhou Province, a mountainous region suffering from harsh weather conditions. Yu worked hard in the past two years to help the villagers move out of poverty, which Yu said will bring them a brighter future.

Yu said the first thing she decided to do was paving a road in the village when she first arrived there. “Having a clean road was a must. It was a vital component of the village’s development.” Yu said. The villagers had to travel far distances to buy materials and explosives. The paved road helped the villagers to transport goods and materials more conveniently, which made her family richer and richer.

After the road was paved, Yu set her mind on doing something else. She wanted to do something that would bring the village more income. She said the villagers had to go through farmland, so some villagers’ children had to be sent to the city to receive education. In 2001, Yu’s two sons were born. She had to take care of them while working in the fields. To earn more income, Yu started a restaurant. She bought a camera, which was stolen. “Seeing tree stubs left behind here and there, my heart ached,” Yu said. “I love every stretch of land in this village, I love every man in the village. Now I am married to the village.”

Yu’s sons took over the restaurant she bought. They managed to make money by thinning the forest and raising poultry, pigs and oxen in the forest. In 2001, three months after her business success, elected her the secretary of the CPC Yanbo Village Committee. She also like to urge greater improvement in rural infrastructure.

The forest also yielded economic benefit. Yu said the village made money by thinning the forest and raising poultry, pigs and oxen in the forest. The village has not only paid back the forest but also enjoy picking wild fruits and vegetables, which adds more economic benefit to the village.

The village has not only paid back the forest but also enjoy picking wild fruits and vegetables, which adds more economic benefit to the village. Moreover, with a flourishing forest, people can easily find more jobs.

The village have more jobs for villagers, which is the most important. The report to the CPC National Congress is about the people’s desire for a better life. The people’s desire for a better life is in the interests of the people, rely on the people for support, and be of direct benefit to them. Development should be in the interests of the people, rely on the people for support, and be of direct benefit to all parties involved. Development is not just for the government, it is for all parties involved. People’s interest should be in the forefront of the government’s development.”
